

Ventria Bioscience is a biopharmaceutical company developing human and animal health products. Prior to Ventria, Scott led the startup of several successful businesses, including a strategic alliance between Cargill and F. Hoffmann-La Roche and as President/CEO of CyberCrop. Scott has a BSc from University of Kansas, an MBA from University of Chicago, and an MSc from London School of Economics.